Discover Magazine using The Living Book technique

Dear Mr Powell:

I read, with interest, your editorial, which disclosed that "Research keeps moving after our ink hits the page, and we are exploring ways to let our readers share in that steady advance as well."

I self-published one book, of which I was also was also the editor. Needless to say, when the Book was printed, I found a number of mistakes/misprints.

Since my book also contained my address, my E Mail # and my Website, (cifaldi.org), I found that, that presented a way to rectify/update, any information printed therein! I revised my HomePage which then included a section thereof entitling it ©"The Living Book".

NOTE: There are approximately (26) SEARCH Engines, and every one of them, contains the HOMEPAGE of my Website!

In that section, I could then correct/edit any paper I authored. When printed, it could then be added to my book or paper, (appropriately titled), page numbered, pasted in and made a part of the original document!

You would then be able to correct/amend/update any printed matter, and then paste it in the original document/article! In that way, it presents the answer to notifying any interested reader of those changes! You would even have the ability to change the cover and attach/replace it with another of your choice!

I would be honored & hereby grant to DISCOVER MAGAZINE, the right to use my Copyrighted manner, ©"The Living Book", in the publication of their magazine.

Yours truly
